Abstract: The crisis of social values has resulted in the crisis of education which is directly related to the use of Internet as a modern addiction. The crisis of education is recognized in terms of an identity crisis at personal and national level. The responsibility for the failure of the education among children equally depends on many factors within the educational process of a child. Those factors vary starting from parents to the educational institution. The main cause of the educational crisis can be identified through a deficit of self-esteem. In most of the cases, failures occur due to the wrong time arrangement and neglecting of the basic needs of individuals, in another word the Internet. The internet users are constantly searching for new information – in the means of communication. The internet addiction provides a short-term satisfaction, and the consequences are very unpleasant.

Keywords: educational crisis, addiction, leisure time.
