

Economic Aspects of Human Resource Management in Lifelong Learning Process

Nusreta Omerdić

University of Travnik, Travnik, Bosnia and Hercegovina
nusi.o@hotmail.com

Tarik Obralić

University of Travnik, Travnik, Bosnia and Hercegovina
obralict@hotmail.com

Fundamental economic aspects of human resource management in lifelong learning process have been identified particularly in the processes of human resources information field (the employees awareness of what is important for their activity and relationships within the process of labor, management and relations within the company); the detection of the management resources (communication skills, creativity, efficiency, management, reliability, respectful attitude toward the work and the company); employment (jobs, human resource planning, selection of people for employment); encouraging success at work (creativity, activity, motivation and performance assessment); and professional development (education in the workplace, career development, the system of improvement and redundancy). The results of the study can be the useful resource for future research.

Keywords: Management, Manager, Professional Development, Lifelong Learning.